The starboard main wheel bearing housing flange of an aircraft had failed. There were tell tale marks indicating heavy rubbing action due to improper alignment of the assembly during the last overhaul. Fractographic examination indicated that this failure was due to fatigue.